Dear Mr. President:

I am pleased to transmit to you the 22nd Annual Report of the United States National Commission on Libraries and Information Science. This report covers the period from October 1, 1992, through September 30, 1993, and is submitted to you in accordance with the provisions of Section 5(a)7 of the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science Act (Public Law 91-345, as amended by Public Law 93-29, Section 802).

The 1993 Annual Report highlights NCLIS programs, projects, and plans in furtherance of its goals and its mandate. The Commission is especially proud of recent programs in the areas of education and the information infrastructure. The Commission is conducting sample surveys to determine status of the school library media center and to assess public library use of the Internet in order to develop policy proposals. In addition, the Commission has conducted open forums on the changing role of the Federal government in support of library and information services and literacy programs for children and youth.

It is with pride that the Commissioners transmit NCLIS' record of accomplishments for Fiscal Year 1992-93.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Hurley Simon

INTRODUCTION

The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science (NCLIS) enjoyed an eventful year in 1992-93, administratively and programmatically. The surge of the new Administration's priorities and initiatives included two major concerns already reflected in NCLIS programming: education and the information infrastructure. In addition to public forums and other activities, NCLIS arranged for sample surveys of school library media centers and public libraries to provide data on which to base policy advice in the education and information infrastructure programs respectively.

As required by the General Services Administration, the NCLIS staff moved the Commission office in April 1993. The staff further developed its local area network of computers and applications, modernized telephone and mail operations and, courtesy of the U.S. Department of Education, was connected to the Internet. NCLIS staff size remained at five full-time permanent employees, plus consultants working at various times during the year, along with the contractual staff operating the Library Statistics Program. Peter R. Young continued as the Executive Director of NCLIS.

Congress appropriated $889,000 for FY 1993 for NCLIS, a 7% increase over the FY 1992 appropriation of $831,000. Funds covered operations and programs and enabled NCLIS to meet and/or hold open forums in cities across the United States. For example, the Commissioners were able to see four major urban public libraries in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, and Washington, DC and to feed those first-hand experiences into their programs on education and the information infrastructure.

- NCLIS Chairman J. Michael Farrell and Commissioners Jerald Newman and Julia Wu ended their carry-over years on the Commission in July 1993. (Their terms ended July 1992 and they were eligible to serve an extra twelve months, since they were not replaced or reappointed during that time.) James Lyons, Jr. resigned from the Commission in April 1993 and Commissioners Wanda Forbes, Ben-chieh Liu, and Charles Reid began their carry-over years in July 1993. Vice Chairman Elinor Swaim presided over NCLIS affairs after July 19, 1993, when Chairman Farrell's final year ended. Other continuing members of the Commission were Shirley Adamovich, Daniel Casey, Carol DiPrete, Norman Kelson, Kay Riddle, and Barbara Taylor. Winston Tabb represented the Librarian of Congress, a permanent NCLIS member.

ADVICE TO EXECUTIVE AND LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES

Throughout the year the NCLIS Commissioners and staff maintained contact with various officials and their staffs in the Congress and the Administration on matters affecting library and information services nationally. With a new Administration, there were many opportunities to acquaint or reacquaint officials with the status and needs of library and information services and with NCLIS' roles in determining and assessing the status and needs. NCLIS undertook program activities summarized below to give it the basis for advising the Administration and the Congress.

The recommendations from the July 1991 White House Conference on Library and Information Services, planned and carried out under the Commission's auspices, were another source of advice for the federal government. NCLIS commissioned two analyses of the recommendations from a public policy perspective to help NCLIS, the Administration, and the Congress assess the pertinence of the Conference recommendations for federal initiatives and legislation such as the 1994/95 reauthorization of the Library Services and Construction Act.

Major 1993 legislation of concern to the Commission included:

- Communications Competitiveness and Infrastructure Modernization Act of 1993
- Copyright Reform Act of 1993
- Copyright Royalty Tribunal Reform Act of 1993
- Electronic Library Act of 1993
- Elementary and Secondary Education Act, reauthorization

- Elementary and Secondary School Library Media Act
- Goals 2000: Educate America Act
- Government Reform and Savings Act of 1993
- High Performance Computing & High Speed Networking Applications Act of 1993
- Improving America's Schools Act of 1993
- Library of Congress Fund Act of 1993
- National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993
- National Competitiveness Act of 1993
- National Information Infrastructure Act of 1993
- Office of Educational Research and Improvement Reauthorization Act
- Paperwork Reduction Act of 1993
- Technology for Education Act of 1993
- Telecommunications Infrastructure Act of 1993

Commissioners Adamovich and DiPrete attended meetings on the reauthorization of the Library Services and Construction Act. The Chief Officers of State Library Agencies and the American Library Association convened the meetings.

LIBRARIES AND INFORMATION SERVICES IN A NETWORKED, ELECTRONIC ENVIRONMENT

NCLIS Distinguished Researcher

To follow up on its July 1992 open forum and November 1992 report on library and information services' roles in the National Research and Education Network, in mid-1993 the Commission named Syracuse professor Dr. Charles McClure as NCLIS Distinguished Researcher to examine the impacts of networking on libraries and information services.

Study of Public Libraries and the Internet

The scope of Dr. McClure's work for the Commission was later refined and extended to include a survey and analysis of public libraries and the Internet. Wisconsin professor Douglas Zweizig and Dr. McClure, co-principal investigators for the project, plan a quick-response sample survey for January 1994.

Dr. McClure will analyze survey findings about the extent of public library involvement with the Internet to identify potential federal policies on the public library role in developing a national networked information infrastructure. NCLIS and Drs. McClure and Zweizig will report initial findings in March 1994 at the Public Library Association conference. NCLIS will publish the findings for general print and electronic distribution as well.

Other Activities

In 1993 NCLIS reviewed and responded to legislation, the Administration's initiatives, reports and other documents pertinent to libraries in a networked environment. NCLIS also participated in meetings such as those of the Digital Resources for Education and Training Work Group, coordinated by the Office of Science and Technology Policy. Various other meetings took place with administration officials working on the national information infrastructure.

These and related activities were part of followup to a priority recommendation from the 1991 White House Conference on Library and Information Services (WHCLIS) on sharing information via a network "superhighway." (See text of recommendation in Appendix C.)

LIBRARIES, INFORMATION SERVICES, AND EDUCATION

Omnibus Children and Youth Literacy Initiative from White House Conference

Much Commission activity focused on another priority recommendation from the 1991 White House Conference, the Omnibus Children and Youth Literacy Initiative. (See text of recommendation in Appendix D.) Three NCLIS committees worked together to plan various activities and represent the Commission throughout the fiscal year:

- Education and Special Populations Committee, chaired by Wanda L. Forbes,
- Legislative and Library Statistics Committee, chaired by Carol DiPrete,
- Ad Hoc America 2000/Goals 2000 Library Partnership Committee, chaired by Shirley G. Adamovich.

From late 1992 through mid-1993 NCLIS arranged several meetings with representatives from the American Library Association and the Chief Officers of State Library Agencies to share information and plans in pursuit of the goals of this recommendation on children's and youth services in libraries.

The sessions were as follows:

- December 17, Washington, D.C., with representatives of COSLA;
- January 21, Denver, with the presidents and directors of ALA's children and youth services divisions;
- April 26-27, Washington, D.C., with representatives of ALA, COSLA, the Department of Education and the Council on Library Resources;
- August 4, Washington, D.C., with representatives from the same organizations as for the April meeting.

While these meetings proceeded in 1993, so did action on pertinent legislation such as the Elementary and Secondary School Library Media Act, Goals 2000 bills on educational reform, and reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Forums on Library and Information Services for Children and Youth

NCLIS also conducted two open forums to hear the views of interested parties across the country on the status, needs and visions for services to children and youth in school library media centers and public libraries and possible federal roles and responsibilities in providing those services.

The first forum was held May 4-5, 1993 in Boston. The Boston Public Library was the local host and staffer Dana Rizzoti was the library's liaison to the Commission for the forum. Chairman Michael Farrell moderated the forum, with Commissioners Carol DiPrete and Shirley Adamovich as forum panelists. They heard the views of 23 individuals from the Northeast, representing school library media centers, public libraries, academic libraries, graduate library and education schools, consultants, educational technology groups, state agencies, regional networks, state and national associations and institutions. A roster of the organizations represented at the forum is in Appendix E.

The second forum, September 2 in Sacramento, was preceded by a September 1 background briefing on demographic and economic trends in California and other western states. The briefing and forum were held at the California State Library and were coordinated by California state librarian Gary Strong and his staff, including children's and youth services consultant Bessie Condos Egan and California Research Bureau transitional director Dean Mischynski. Organizations represented at the California events are also listed in Appendix E. Forum officers for NCLIS were Vice Chairman Elinor Swaim, Wanda Forbes and Daniel Casey. Commissioners Norman Kelson, Ben-chieh Liu and Kay Riddle also attended the events.

A third briefing and forum are being planned for December 1993 in Des Moines, with coordination by the Iowa State Library. The Commission is publishing the proceedings of each forum, which also serve as the basis for NCLIS to advise Congress and the Administration in formulating national programs and plans related to children and youth.

School Library Statistics

Another component of the Commission's program on libraries and education was a cooperative project with the American Library Association's Office for Research and Statistics and the American Association of School Librarians to collect selected statistics from a sample of school library media centers. The National Center for Education Statistics most recently collected statistics on school library media centers in 1985. Results of the next national survey are not expected until late 1995. The June-December 1993 NCLIS/ALA project is to provide current information for activities related to the legislation cited above.

AMERICA 2000 Library Partnership

Saying that "Libraries are at the center of the revolution beginning in American schools," on September 8, 1992, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander announced the formation of the AMERICA 2000 Library Partnership with the Commission, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Library of Congress and the National Institute for Literacy. The partnership's purpose was to support libraries in their work toward the six National Education Goals. NCLIS Chairman Farrell named Commissioner Adamovich to head an NCLIS ad hoc committee on the partnership to develop plans for promoting the role of libraries in helping communities meet the Goals.

Shirley Adamovich and Wanda Forbes met several times with representatives of organizations in the partnership. The new Administration did not reactivate the partnership before the end of September 1993.

Other Activities

Commissioner Wanda Forbes represented NCLIS at meetings in Washington, D.C., of the National Forum on Information Literacy. Jane Williams represented NCLIS at meetings of the National Coalition for Literacy.

In 1988, we convened in Annapolis, MD, the first Federal State Cooperative for Public Library Data Annual Training Workshop. We now know it as FSCS, and I learned to know a group of professionals and steering committee members who have been among the most enthusiastic, self-starting, thoughtful, responsive --maybe even workaholic statistics-buffs -- that I have ever encountered. It has been a richly rewarding experience for me and a highly productive one for American libraries. It is one, moreover, that is still growing and developing and the outcome, I am confident, will be of even greater benefit to the public and the library community in the future.

LIBRARY STATISTICS

In addition to the special statistical projects mentioned above, the Commission continued its collaboration with the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), U.S. Department of Education, on a comprehensive and consistent national Library Statistics Program (LSP). The original component of the LSP is the Federal-State Cooperative System for public library data (FSCS). In March 1993 NCES electronically released the 1991 public library data for the 50 states and the District of Columbia. Public library data from U.S. territories will be added to the states' statistics, beginning with the cycle for collecting 1992 data.

In December 1992 NCES published E.D. Tabs Academic Libraries 1990. This publication represents the cooperative work of NCES, NCLIS and the ALA Office for Research and Statistics.

The Library Statistics Program coordinated drafting of a survey instrument for the state library agencies, with the survey to take place in the 1993/94 fiscal year. It will be the first federal survey of state library agencies since 1977. Joseph Shubert of New York chaired the committee of state librarians advising on the survey.

In September NCLIS and NCES hosted a policy forum to assess the changes in library and information services that are and will be taking place over the next decade and the implications of these changes for the collection, analyses and use of data relating to national library and information services. Measuring the impact of technology on libraries, multitype library collaboration, education for library and information professionals, and statistical support for urban public library services were topics of papers given at the forum. A report on the forum is to be published in 1994.

The FSCS Steering Committee met in October 1992 and March and August 1993. The annual workshop for FSCS state data coordinators was conducted in December 1992. The Technical Subcommittee met in September to consider how public libraries could use microcomputers and/or online networks to report statistics to the state library agency. Plans were made for several test projects to help determine the best course of action.

Commissioners DiPrete and Liu represented NCLIS at the various meetings concerning the Library Statistics Program throughout the year. Dr. Liu, in collaboration with Carrol Kindel, head of the Library Statistics Unit at NCES, prepared a paper, "Patterns and Cost Functions of Public Library Distribution," on public library statistics for Dr. Liu's presentation at the August 1993 meeting of the American Statistical Association.

IFLA Conference

Elinor Swaim, Carol DiPrete and Winston Tabb participated in the 59th conference of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions in Barcelona, August 18–22, 1993.

Vice Chairman Swaim represented the Commission at a pre-conference seminar August 15–20, the International Seminar on School Libraries, the first such event in the history of school libraries worldwide. The seminar involved representatives from 26 developing and other countries.

Glenerin Followup

In 1987 the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada signed the Glenerin Declaration on the role of information in the economy. Representatives from NCLIS, the British Library and the National Library of Canada held a followup planning meeting in June 1992, which resulted in a working report, "Major Systems of Definition, Measurement and Classification that Serve as Barriers to Understanding and Exploiting the Role of Information in the Economy," by Forest Woody Horton, Jr.

Mr. Farrell and Commissioner Carol DiPrete met on June 17-18, 1993, with Brian Perry at the British Library in London to discuss the possibility of establishing an international task force on the role of information in the economy. The purpose would be to follow up on the statement in the 1987 Glenerin Declaration calling for "new standardized methods for the evaluation of information as an economic resource and for methods to calculate the impact or value of information on the economy".

Discussions between Mr. Farrell and Mr. Perry to convene an international conference to consider the above statement led to NCLIS' contacting other countries to gauge interest in a November 1993 meeting. Considerable interest was expressed, but time to plan and funds to support such an undertaking were inadequate, and at its August 1993 meeting the Commission tabled the plans.

Other Activities

November 16-20, 1992, Chairman Farrell and Commissioner Riddle attended the ninth session of the Intergovernmental Council for the General Information Programme (PGI) in Paris. Mr. Farrell and Mrs. Riddle were the unofficial United States' delegation of observers. The PGI was established to help member states integrate the development of their information infrastructures, including scientific and technical information services, libraries and archives.

On November 21 Peter Young participated in a panel discussion on the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and access to information at the Ontario Library Association in Toronto. December 6-8, 1992, Chairman Farrell attended the National Summit on Information Policy in Ottawa, Canada, as an invited observer.

In April Chairman Farrell and Executive Director Young attended an International Conference on National Libraries in Taiwan. Both Mr. Farrell and Mr. Young presented papers at the conference, held to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the National Central Library of the Republic of China.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE ON LIBRARY AND INFORMATION SERVICES

In the fall of 1992 the 600-page final report on the 1991 White House Conference on Library and Information Services (WHCLIS) was printed and distributed by NCLIS to 400 individuals and organizations. The publication concluded an extensive process, begun a year earlier, to prepare a comprehensive compendium of material related to the WHCLIS process.

The Government Printing Office (GPO) distributed 1,300 copies of Information 2000: Final Report of the White House Conference on Library and Information Services, to the federal depository libraries. The GPO also sold copies of the Final Report and the Summary Report.

The Congress appropriated $397,000 in FY 1993 to liquidate obligations incurred by the White House Conference. By the spring of 1993, the Department of Education, as the contractor for administrative services for WHCLIS and NCLIS, had obligated funds for all bills except one.

Commissioner Daniel Casey and Associate Executive Director Mary Alice Hedge-Reszetar continued their work with the White House Conference on Library and Information Services Taskforce (WHCLIST).

*The Commission's study reveals that reservation Indians suffer from minimal or inadequate
library and information services
as well as geographic barriers to access.
Discrimination and lack of culturally appropriate library and information resources are among the constraining factors affecting the quality of library and information services available to non-reservation
Native American peoples.*

American Peoples, U.S. National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, December 1992.

LIBRARIES AND INFORMATION SERVICES FOR NATIVE AMERICANS

In December 1992 NCLIS completed work on Pathways to Excellence: A Report on Improving Library and Information Services to Native American Peoples. The report was printed in two volumes. The first was a summary report of 32 pages, highlighting the process and the findings of the Commission's activities in this area over the last several years.

The full report, incorporating the summary report as the first section, contains appendices of NCLIS Native American hearing transcripts, the strategic long-range plan for improving Native American tribal libraries, recommendations and petitions from the 1991 WHCLIS relating to Native American library and information services, and additional materials related to site visits made by Commissioners to Native American libraries, archives and tribal colleges.

Commissioners Elinor Swaim and Charles Reid advised on preparation of the reports.

By the spring of 1993, NCLIS had distributed 300 copies of the full report and 900 copies of the summary report to individuals and organizations involved with the Commission in its program of libraries and information services for Native Americans. In addition, the GPO sent 1,300 copies of the summary report to the federal depository libraries and had copies of both reports for sale.

RECOGNITION AWARDS

NCLIS began an awards program in 1987 to recognize outstanding initiatives by individuals other than librarians and by non-library organizations to improve and promote library and information services. The Commission approved 1993 awards to:

- Ruth J. Colvin, founder and first president of Literacy Volunteers of America;
- Della Jackson, founder of library for African Americans in community in western NC;
- KENS-TV, support of San Antonio Public Library's fund-raising telethon;
- Mott's USA, provider of up to $500,000 to public libraries for books and other educational materials;
- Jerry Neuman, creator, producer and host of "Check It Out: The Radio Library Program," a daily two-minute public radio program; and
- Screen Actors Guild Foundation, for Book PALS, Performing Artists for Literacy in Schools.

PERSONNEL AND ADMINISTRATION

Commissioners

For close to nine months of the year, Commission membership remained as it had been at the end of the 1992 fiscal year, with the exception of James (Jed) E. Lyons' resignation on April 20, 1993. In July 1993, three Members -- J. Michael Farrell, Jerald Newman and Julia Wu -- left the Commission, having served the additional year permitted by law (P.L. 102-95) beyond the July 19, 1992, expiration of their terms.

Mr. Farrell began service on October 10, 1990, to fill the unexpired term of Sally Jo Vasicko and had been the NCLIS Chairman since March 11, 1992. Mr. Newman became a Commissioner in 1982 and is a Chairman Emeritus, having headed the Commission from May 1987 to March 1990. Mrs. Wu had been a Commissioner since 1982 and had also served a term from 1973-1978. At their May meeting, Commissioners approved resolutions honoring their colleagues' service.

The American Library Association honored John G. Lorenz with the 1993 Joseph W. Lippincott Award, presented annually for distinguished professional service in librarianship. Mr. Lorenz, former Deputy Librarian of Congress, represented Librarian of Congress L. Quincy Mumford on the Commission from 1970-1975. Mr. Lorenz was the acting executive director for NCLIS in July and August 1990 and now coordinates the Library Statistics Program for NCLIS and NCES. The text of the Lippincott Award to Mr. Lorenz is in Appendix F.

Former Commissioner John G. Kemeny died December 26, 1992. Dr. Kemeny, whose NCLIS term was 1970–1973, was former president of Dartmouth College.

Meetings of the Commission

After holding only three meetings in FY 1992, the Commission resumed its schedule of quarterly meetings in 1993. The fall 1992 meeting was November 9–10 in Washington, D.C. at the Martin Luther King Memorial Library. The January 19–20, 1993, meeting in Denver was in conjunction with the American Library Association's Midwinter Meeting, and the May 17–18 sessions were in conjunction with the annual conference of the Medical Library Association. Local host for the May meeting was the Chicago Library System. The August 5–6 meeting was in Philadelphia, with the Free Library of Philadelphia as the local host.

The three library directors, Dr. Hardy R. Franklin (Washington, D.C.), Alice C. Calabrese (Chicago Library System) and Elliot L. Shelkrot (Philadelphia) arranged special events for the Commissioners, including presentations from resource people important to their cities' library and information services.

Staff and Contract Employees

The Commission continued with five full-time permanent positions filled throughout the year and supplemented staff with consultants for specialized tasks: Gregory M. Gagne (editing and layout of 1991-1992 NCLIS Annual Report), Mary Go Godwin (editing and layout of report on library and information services to Native Americans), Paula Montgomery and Fern Lapidus (planning, communications and logistics for activities under NCLIS' libraries and education program), and Barbara Whiteleather and Kim Miller (assistants to the NCLIS Executive Director and staff). Permanent staff members are listed on the inside front cover of this report.

In August Charles R. McClure, professor in the School of Information Studies at Syracuse University, began a consultancy with NCLIS as a distinguished researcher. Dr. McClure is to provide the Commission expertise in researching and examining the impacts of Internet/NREN networking on libraries and information services and how those impacts can be measured.

John Lorenz continued under contract to coordinate the Library Statistics Program for NCLIS and the National Center for Education Statistics. Mimie Rutledge continued as the program's financial officer and Kim Miller and Barbara Whiteleather shared duties as the program's administrative officer.

Budget

The Commission's appropriation for FY 1993 was $896,000, the largest ever and a 6.6% increase over the $831,000 for FY 1992. All Federal discretionary programs were reduced by 0.08% in FY 1993, so the actual NCLIS budget was $888,832.

Move to New Office

On April 10 the NCLIS office was moved to Suite 820 of 1110 Vermont Avenue, Northwest, in downtown Washington, D.C. Vivian Terrell, Kim Miller and Peter Young coordinated the multitude of details and arrangements for the move, which resulted in larger and more comfortable offices for the Commission.

The General Services Administration required NCLIS and other Federal agencies in the Logan Building on 18th Street to move prior to the end-of-April 1993 expiration of GSA's lease extension for space in the building. The Commission had been in the Logan Building since 1987.

Appendix C

White House Conference on Library and Information Services

Priority Recommendation

■ Share Information Via Network 'Super-highway'

That the Congress enact legislation creating and funding the National Research and Education Network (NREN) to serve as an information "superhighway," allowing educational institutions, including libraries, to capitalize on the advantages of technology for resource sharing and the creation and exchange of information. The network should be available in all libraries and other information repositories at every level. The governance structure for NREN should include representation from all interested constituencies, including technical, user, and information provider components, as well as government, education at all levels, and libraries. (TEC06-1)

Appendix D

White House Conference on Library and Information Services

Priority Recommendation

■ Adopt Omnibus Children and Youth Literacy Initiative

That the President and the Congress adopt a four-pronged initiative to invigorate library and information services for student learning and literacy through legislation which would consist of:

School Library Services Title which would:

- Establish within the U.S. Department of Education an office responsible for providing leadership to school library media programs across the Nation.
- Create federal legislation to provide demonstration grants to schools for teachers and library media specialists to design resource-based instructional activities that provide opportunities for students to explore diverse ideas and multiple sources of information.
- Establish grants to provide information technology to school media centers, requiring categorical aid for school library media services and resources in any federal legislation which provides funds for educational purposes.
- Establish a federal incentive program for states to ensure adequate professional staffing in school library media centers. This would serve as a first step toward the goal for all schools to be fully staffed by professional school library media specialists and support personnel to provide, facilitate, and integrate instructional programs which impact student learning.

Public Library Children's Services Title, which would provide funding support for:

- Demonstration grants for services to children.
- Parent/family education projects for early childhood services involving early childhood support agencies.
- Working in partnership with day care centers and other early childhood providers to offer deposit collections and training in the use of library resources.

(Concurrently, funding for programs such as Head Start should be increased for early childhood education.)

Public Library Young Adult Services Title, which would provide funding support for:

- Demonstration grants for services to young adults.
- Youth-at-risk demonstration grants to provide outreach services, through partnership with community youth-serving agencies, for young adults on the verge of risk behavior, as well as those already in crisis.
- A national library-based "Kids Corps" program for young adults to offer significant salaried youth participation projects to build self-esteem, develop skills, and expand the responsiveness and level of library and information services to teenagers.

Partnership with Libraries for Youth Title, which would provide funding support to:

- Develop partnership programs between school and public libraries to provide comprehensive library services to children and young adults.
- Establish and fund agenda for research to document and evaluate how children and young adults develop abilities that make them information literate.
- Establish a nationwide resource-sharing network that includes school library media programs as equal partners with libraries and ensures that all youth have access to the Nation's library resources equal to that of other users.
- Encourage school and public library intergenerational demonstration programs which provide meaningful services

(e.g., tutoring, leisure activities, and sharing of books, ideas, hobbies) for latchkey children and young adolescents in collaboration with networks and private organizations, such as conducted by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP).

- Create family literacy demonstration programs that involve school and public libraries and other family-serving agencies.
- Provide discretionary grants to library schools and schools of education for the collaborative development of graduate programs to educate librarians to serve children and young adults.
- Provide opportunities for potential authors who reflect our cultural diversity to develop abilities to write stories and create other communications media about diverse cultures for youth.

Further, all legislation authorizing child care programs, drug prevention programs, and other youth-at-risk programs should include funds for appropriate books and library materials, to be selected in consultation with professional librarians. (SER02-1)

the 1993 Joseph W. Lippincott Award to John G. Lorenz"

Question: What do all these organizations have in common --- U.S. Office of Education, Library of Congress, Association of Research Libraries,
the U.S. National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions, ALA?

The answer: John G. Lorenz.
In his library career of 53 years to date, he is unique in the breadth and effectiveness of his participation and leadership in the organizations and agencies that have shaped the policies and services of American librarianship.

His role as a friend and mentor,
his diplomacy,
and his commitment to education and library development have been lauded by an unparalleled array of library leaders.

It is for these qualities and actions that the ALA bestows upon him the 1993 Joseph W. Lippincott Award.
